Lagging

The first person to shoot in a game of marbles is determined by lagging:

1. Draw a line on the ground.
2. The players shoot at the line from 10 feet away.
3. The player closest to the line goes first.

The Game

1. Draw a ring (a large circle - usually about 5 to 10 feet across) and put 13 marbles in it . The marbles should be in a cross and spaced 3 inches apart.
2. Each player shoots in turn from outside the circle, trying to hit a marble out of the ring while keeping his shooter inside the ring.
3. If the shooter has a miss, his turn is over and he picks up the shooter.
4. If the shooter has a hit but the shooter also rolls out of the ring, he keeps the marbles that rolled out and his turn is over.
5. If the shooter has a hit and the shooter stays in the ring then player shoots again from the place where the shooter stayed.
6. On each new turn a player shoots from anywhere outside the ring.
7. The person who collects the most marbles is the winner.
